THE Republican conferees of the Washington, Pa., Congress district, who met at Pittsburgh on the 7th, nominated WM S. MOORE, editor of the Reporter. The district is close and the present member a Democrat, but we shall hope to see Mr. MOORE redeem it.

THE attention of the country is just now turned to the coming election in this State, and our exchanges from other States are all explaining to their readers the complicated situation here. They generally concur in saying that the election can have little political significance whatever the result may be.

THE clause in the new postal law which allows the transportation in the mails of small packages at a trifling cost is one of the best things placed on our statute books for a long time. Not only does it make the poorer classes independent of the express companies, and enable them to send and receive small articles at a lower rate, but it has forced the express companies to lower their tariff of charges on small parcels of all kinds, so that the whole country, and especially the middle class, is very largely benefited, both directly and indirectly.

AFTER West Virginia, Vermont will be the next State to hold an election. This men, one or two of them in poor health will occur on the 8d of next month. The candidates for Governor are Julius Converse, Republican, and A. B. GARDINER, first be necessary to ascertain when and GREELEY Democrat. Vermont is too much like a jug-handle to be interesting In 1870 in a total vote of 42,426, the Republican majority was 21,305.

The Maine election, coming next, occurs September 9th. Maine was a pretty reliable Democratic State before 1856, and the GREELEVITES are not without hope of wresting it from the Republicans. In 1868 the Republican majority was 10.403: in 1869, 6,084; in 1870, 9,606; in 1871, 10,631. Gov. Sydney Perham is the Republican candidate for re-election, and CHARLES P. KIMBALL his opponent. The contest has begun with unusual bitterness, and promises to be unprecedentedly fierce.

A sense of duty constrains us to notice that while the Steubenville Herald puts up the name of DANFORD, the candidate for Congress, it does not put up that of TERES-One-fourth cash, the residue in equal Dr. UPDEGRAFF, the Republican presidential elector. Why is this? Does not the Herald support GRANT, and if so how can it make that support effective if GRANT electors are not chosen. We begin to have a suspicion that the Herald is not as truly loyal nor so reliable an organ as it used to be. The Herald used to keep at the head of its columns a standing announcement that it was the official poper of the United States, State, county and city. We have been looking for this announcement lately but do not find it; and we begin to fear the Herald has ceased to be the official organ. Can the News inform a solicitous public how that is, and if so, when the "official" relation ceased, and whether recent miscarriages in the matter of Congressional politics can possi-bly have had anything to do with it

Governor Sam Bard, who is chairman of a Chattanooga committee to extend an invitation on behalf of the municipal authorities and Board of Trade to the President and Cabinet to visit Chattanooga and Lookout Mountain, had an interview with the President, who informed him that he had laid the invitation before several members of the Cabinet and would give a definite answer after the meeting pers of the Cabinet then in town. Belknan, Creawell and Williams, visited Pres ident Grant on business, the last named in reference to the Ku Klux convicts in the Albany penitentiary. The report in the case by Col. Whitley having been read dent, he directed pardons to be made out in behalf of those recommended to Executive clemency, namely, David Collins, William Teal, Amos Owen and William Scrugg, who are said to be old where they were convicted. After these cases shall be disposed of the President will consider the suggestions of Col. Whitley relative to eighteen others now n the Albany penitentiary. Early in the afternoon the President briefly engaged in conversation with several of his friends, chiefly on political topics, from which it appears he is satisfied with the situation as regards himself.

When asked about the alleged slight to Frederick Douglass he replied that if Douglass did not complain because Frederick he was not invited by him to dinner, he did not see why Senator Summer should exhibit so mited anxiety, it not indignation, upon the subject. The simple fact was, that the Domingo Commissioners, with their Secretary, having called to submit their report, invited them to dine with him. Douglass, not being with the with him. Douglass not being with the Commissioners, he did not, at the time, think of him nor of the others who accompanied the expedition, but if Siegel and Douglass had been with the Commissioners, they would have heap included. ioners, they would have been included in the invitation to dinner, which was informal and private, having no official significance whatever. The President expressed his surprise that so much should said about an immaterial matterone that merely concerns his household. He remarked that no public business is neglected by his absence from Washington, as he attends to it at Long Branch. His coming back to Washing. His coming back to Washington to-day, was not absolutely necessary for that purpose. The conversation turn ing on the remark of Senator Sumner, the effect that Greeley is a better friend to the black man than President Grant. The President replied, that he never pretended to be, as he had repeatedly said, an original abolitionist, but he favored emancipation as a war measure. When this was secured, he thought the ballot should be conferred to make the gift should be conterred to make the gilt complete, and place those who had been liberated in full possession of the rights of freemen. His views however on the subject of slavery were well known, expressed in letters to Washburn and others, and extensively published, and hence this was a matter of dispute course of conversation, he said that while a President should be in accord with the leading principles of the party that equality and right. They desire a rule elected him, it was essential that he should entorce the laws which he should enforce the laws which may be enacted, and administer the Gov-ernment, not in the interest of party, but in that of the entire country. While he ernment, not in the interest of party, but in that of the entire country. While he had no unkind words to utter concerning Mr. Sumner, he was perfectly willing to place his acts against Sumner's words, and in this connection, he said that Sumner did not show himself such a good friend to the black man as he professed to be. to the black man as he professed to be, when he was not willing to have a civil rights bill stand on its own merits—requiring only a majority water than the shades of private life. Carpenter's Civil Rights bill, however, was passed during the absence of Senator Sumner, and, as facts show, much to his surprise. The President also said that it will be seen by the Congressional Globe that Senator Sumner did not your at all on the joint resolution recommending the raufication of the 15th amendment to the Constitution of the United States. PORTLAND, August 15.—The following speech was made by Mr. Greeley at his reception here:

He had struggled throughout his life for, first, impartial and universal liberty; second, for the unity and greatness of our common country; third, but by no means least, when the former end was attained. least, when the former end was attained, for an early and hearty reconciliation and peace among our countrymen. He recognized the propriety of a candidate for the Presidency making no speeches, yet there is truth to be uttered in behalf of those who have placed me before the American people in my present attitude. American people in my present attitude, which does them such honor, that I claim the privilege of stating it here. This is that truth: No person has ever yet made the fact known that he proposed to sup port, or actually did support, my nomination, whether at Cincinnation Balti more, or in any action which resulted in sending delegates to either convention, as a basis of a claim for office. No one who favored my nomination before either convention has sought office at my hand, either himself or any one else, nor has any one suggested to me that I might any one suggested to me that I mi strengthen myself as a candidate promising to appoint any one to an im-portant office whatever. In a very few instances, I am certain, some of the smaller fry of politicians have, since my double nomination, hinted to me by letter that I might increase my chances by promising a post office or some such place to my volunteer corres-pondents respectively. I have not usually responded to these overtures, but I now rive general notice that should I be elect. will consider the claims of these nely aspirants after those of a more nodest nature shall have been fully satisfied. [Applause.] In two or three in-stances I have been asked to say whether I would not, if elected, confine my apcountments to Republicans. I answ those by pointing to that plank of the Uncinnati platform, wherein all who concur in the principles therein set forth are cordially invited to participate in their establishment or vindication. I never yet heard of a man who invited his neighors to raise a house and proceeded to kick them out of it so soon as the roof was fairly over his head. For my own part I fairly over his head. For my own part I recognize every honest man who approves and adheres to the Cincinnati platform as my political brother, and as such entitled to my confidence and friendly regards. One other point demands a word: Those One other point demands a word: Those addresses to me ask what pleages I have given to those lately hostile to the Union to secure their layor and support? I answer the control of the words and the south swer that no man or woman in the south ever asked of me, whether directly of given through all my acts and words from the hour of Lee's surrender down to this moment. Every crime must be suppressed and punished, but far wiser and nobler is the legislative policy by which they are prevented. From those who support me in the South I have but one demand, justice; but one desire, reconciliation. They wish to be heartily reunited at peace with the North, by any terms which will not involve the surrender of their manhood. They cherish the joyful hope that the
